

Ralph Goes Viral in the Deep Web

---

Prologue

Ralph, Felix, Tuffyta, Qbert, Vanellope, and Calhoun are tiny people who live in computers. They travel around the universe in a spaceship icon on the desktop.

Ralph once became bad and almost killed Felix a year ago, on Earth. And Calhoun used to be a virus and got in an epic battle with Ralph too.

This time they enter planet Narawa, full of Internet viruses.

How Do You Enter The Internet?

Aliens on Planet Narawa in Andromeda use the same computers as on Earth. They use those widescreens, with QWERTY keyboards, and wireless mice. And they even have their own Internet. Which can connect to the Internet on Earth!

When the aliens normally use a computer, they don't notice the tiny people from Earth who live inside it. People work in the computer to carry out tasks, such as lifting a window on the screen and taping it there.

Earth people make a lot of viruses, which go across the Internet and land on alien planets. Aliens also learned from those viruses and made their own.

The computer's antivirus team came from Earth in a little spaceship icon from the desktop.

Ralph, Felix, Qbert, Vanellope, Calhoun, and Tuffyta are part of the tiny computer peoples' antivirus team. They fight virus bugs and make computers safer across the planet. Any virus that got in would be smashed by Ralph's fists, Felix's lasers, Vanellope's commandment, plus Calhoun and Tuffyta's tricks.

But that changed in 1991, when the Internet was invented on both Earth and Narawa. Most viruses come from the Internet, and the team only fought on the desktop of the computer. The Internet hosts millions of viruses, and that's too bad if you click the wrong button.

"Do you hear that alarm?" Felix said and pointed to where the sound came from. "We have to fight a virus."

"Nobody cares," Ralph said. He wasn't sweating it these days. "All viruses are in the Internet now."

"No, really. A virus is in our system!" Felix started to get impatient.

"Chill off," Tafyta said. "We don't need to fight. We can have fun while other people fight viruses INSIDE the Internet."

"Common sense," Ralph said in a tone that was like he knew everything. "The viruses are in the Internet. We can't go in the Internet. Even if a virus got in, we can't fight Internet viruses."

"No," Felix replied. "Internet viruses are just like desktop viruses. Just like Andromeda viruses are the same as Earth viruses. Now we have to."

Something interrupted Felix. It was a loud sound. It sounded like evil laughter. "MUAHAHAHAHA!!! These old people are useless!" The sound came from the desktop of the computer. Everyone in the antivirus team got their armor and lasers. They were ready to fight until they found out there were no viruses inside their field of vision.

"There're no viruses. And we left our video games on Planet X, so we're not even having fun! Let's leave," Ralph decided. "Come on, Felix! Let's... OOF!" He suddenly tripped on an icon. He fell head first on the mouse pointer, which hit something with a blue E on it.

It's Hard to Get out of the Internet After You Went In

"Ralph! Come back!" Felix shouted. But it was too late. The blue E was Internet Explorer, a web browser. Web browsers access the Internet!

Ralph got up. But the way computers work is if you open a program, the user is automatically in the program. So after a few seconds Ralph was stuck in the Internet. "Help! Let me out! How do you get out of the Internet!?" He shouted as he pushed on the glass cover of the Internet.

"I'll help you!" Calhoun answered. "We'll put you in our spaceship to get home!" He looked around on the desktop for the little spaceship icon. It wasn't there! Instead, another loud, scary, evil laugh echoed across the computer. "MUAHAHAHAHAHA! I have your spaceship! And you'll never get me because I'm in the Deep Web! You don't know what the Deep Web is! So hahahahaha!"

Vanellope cried, "A virus stole our spaceship? I thought they were all in the Internet!"

"Told ya," Felix proved. "Of course there still are viruses!"

Acting as an Icon is Impossible

Calhoun saw a large green shadow approach them. It was an alien, about to check his E-mail. The antivirus team didn't want the aliens to know they were alive, so Tafaeta commanded, "Everyone! Stay still and act like an icon!" Everyone froze and didn't blink.

The alien was actually a kid. He saw strange people standing on the screen. Each of them had an antivirus badge. The kid was curious. So he clicked on Ralph's head. Do you think it's possible to stay still when a mouse pointer bangs you on the head?

"Ow!" Ralph exclaimed. He ran around grabbing his head. The kid thought it was funny so he started clicking on everybody. Then he figured out the icons were real, but didn't look like anyone on the planet. They weren't green, and they wore strange clothes covering their upper body. They wore shoes and pants. And their eyes weren't black. Their heads weren't big. They were humans.

But the alien didn't know that. To him, humans were aliens. So he ran out the door to tell his mom.

"Oh, no!" Felix grumbled. "They saw us. But we have nowhere to hide! And Ralph is still in the Internet!" Except... What if they hid behind the website? Everyone jumped inside the browser, where Ralph was. And ran towards an ad that said, "Go here to hide in the Deep Web! Only $1.99!"

"STOP!" Felix warned. "It says $1.99. We don't have any money!" But it was too late. The antivirus team went through a wire and transported to a Wi-Fi station. A few milliseconds later they crashed into a wall.

Meet Dr. Brain, the Deep Web Expert!

BAM! Everyone found themselves in a cave. It was rocky and cold inside. There was a blue swirling portal on the ceiling. There was a metal door on the ground that had a password lock on it. Strangely, there was an old scientist sprawled onto the floor.

"Heyi every wun," the scientist stood up and spoke with a really strange accent. "Mey naim iss Docterr Brain. You arr neoww in da Deep Webb."

Ralph grunted as he got up out of a pile of rocks. "What is the Deep Web? It doesn't look so deep to me. And how do we get out?" he asked.

"Well, Ralff, it-"

"How'd you know my name?"

"Cuss I have a bigg brain. Ett's obveeus."

Ralph looked at Dr. Brain's head. It actually seemed obviously small. Maybe the brain was proportionally big compared to his head, but that would mean he had a very thin skull.

"Now, Ralff," Dr. Brain continued. "Bakk too yeer quesston. Da Deep Web is a part of dee inteernut that tis invisible to normel peepole. Meoost peepole use a part of the inteernut called da surface web. There dar levels of da Deep Web. De last level tis very seecrett! Most Deep Webb websites arr behind ah passwerrd. Tekknikally yoo cann nott get owt of Deep Web level 5 or abbovv. Butt since yoo arr only in level 1 of da Deep Web, yes you cann get owt through da portall."

"Oh," Felix said. "So it's like a bunch of websites invisible to regular people, and is secret. Now the alien could be gone right now, so let's go back to the computer."

As Felix reached for the button on the portal, he felt a tap on his shoulder. It was Dr. Brain. He warned everyone, "Waitt evverybun! Doo nut goh owt of da Deep Web yet. I need too tell yoo: yoo need to fiend owt da passwerd doo get een and owt. If yoo jusst go throo da portel now, yoo well get haked."

Tafyta pointed to the large metal door with the password on the floor. She asked Dr. Brain, "What does that do?"

Dr. Brain explained, "Oh, dat? Itt justt ah deor for yoo to exploar dee rest off da Deep Web."

Ralph instinctively just smashed through the door with his fists! "Haha!" he said happily. "Hey, come on, let's go in the Deep Web!"

"Oh, neoo," said Dr. Brain. "Yoo arr breaking inn. Yoo diddn't teyppe inn de password. Now the FBI will go after yoo for steeling!"

Going Inside the Deep Web

Vanellope grunted. She had no idea that would cause the trouble of the FBI going after them, all thanks to Dr. Brain Ralph thought a real brain would have told him BEFOREHAND that the FBI would find out. He got mad and started smashing the cave with his fists. BAM! BAM! BANG! CRASH!

But the impact of those clashes shook the other team members and fell through the door. "Aaaaaahhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhh [breath] ...aaaaaaaahhhhhhhhh!" Vanellope started screaming as if she was falling forever. But soon she figured out there was NO GRAVITY inside the doorway, and stopped screaming.

Everyone who was inside flew in the air and twirled around. Ralph jumped in and had a lot of fun. Dr. Brain didn't want to get caught by the FBI, but he thought it was worth it to explain. "Noww," he said. "Yoo see douse dots? Thoseh arr websites inn da Deep Webb. Fly inside a dott and yoo well go too dat webseite."

Everyone in the antivirus team dashed inside the biggest dot. The bigger the dot, the more content in the website. Dr. Brain couldn't go so fast without gravity, so he slowly followed along into the dot.

But the antivirus team was too fast to explore the website. They ran down a narrow path inside the website before Dr. Brain came in. Dr. Brain went down the other path to look for the fighters. "HELLO?" he called into the path. The sound echoed. But the antivirus team was so far down the other road they didn't hear a thing. The path got darker and darker until Dr. Brain couldn't see anything.

The antivirus team grouped together and explored a website with 3D games. Meanwhile, an FBI agent wearing a dark gray suit holding a magnifying glass entered the broken metal password door!

The FBI agent's name was Mr. Dargalomarstingymouseiti. Since his name is extremely hard to pronounce, everyone calls him Dargalo. Dargalo stealthily flew from dot to dot behind the metal doorway, leaving a stream of air behind him. He finds a dot with car racing game sounds coming through it. And that's what Ralph and Felix were playing together.

Dargalo entered the dot. There were 2 paths. 1 where the antivirus team rushed through, and another where Dr. Brain went. Dargalo went through Dr. Brain's trail, and started spying.

There was a place farther down the road where the 2 paths connect. Dr. Brain was almost there when he felt a sharp tug on his shirt. He was pulled back and thrown on someone's arms. Dargalo had captured him!

Escape From Dargalo, The Secret Agent Virus

At first nobody noticed that Dr. Brain was gone. A few minutes later, the team didn't see Dr. Brain anywhere. They also looked inside the second path. At the end of the path, Tuffyta saw a shadow of a spy in a suit holding a figure with a rather small head. Everyone looked up. The FBI agent was walking away with Dr. Brain in his hands!

Suddenly Dargalo turned around and said, "First of all you didn't pay $1.99 in the beginning. Second, you hacked the password, so too bad!" His voice sounded exactly like the virus who stole the spaceship!

"You're the bad guy virus!" Qbert pointed out as he ran towards Dargalo. The antivirus team started chasing Dargalo. Felix reached inside his pocket, looked inside his laser holder, and groaned, "Dang it! We forgot our lasers."

"Oops, I forgot my fist guards!" Ralph said. Without fist guards, his fists would hurt whenever he smashed anything.

Qbert was the best at swimming through the 0-gravity cluster of dots, so he led the team. Dargalo wasn't far behind. He flew just like he ran, and he flew the same speed as he ran.

Felix was about to escape Dargalo by 16 feet, but he smashed into an invisible wall. Vanellope, Tuffy, Calhoun, and Ralph flew back the other way to distract Dargalo.

“Hey dude!” Tuffy called to Dargalo.

Dargalo turned and said, “What?”

“Look there!” Tuffy pointed somewhere, and Dargalo looked there.

“I don’t see anything th-OWW!”

Ralph punched Dargalo on the arm and dropped Dr. Brain.

TOR Required to Go Through the Door

Dr. Brain flew to where Felix is and explained, “Tis wall dis da wall between da third level off da Deep Webb and the 1 yoo arr inn now.”

Felix spun around to Dr. Brain and asked, “If the Deep Web is ALREADY invisible to regular people/aliens, why put a wall here? They won’t come through or anything.”

“Well,” Dr. Brain said. “Tis for sekuureti. Hakkers cum here and putt virusez. And plus, yoo need da softwear called TOR.”

“TOR?”

“Yyes, TOR. TOR is da softwear too let yoo accezz da third Deep Webb levehll. Tis cost $1.99.”

“Aww, dang! Why do we have to hack through when we can’t pay money? Why not-”

“Yoo dent allwyes have too pay money. Something that’s wor-”

“Oh, so are you some kind of money expert?”

“Yeah, but okay. Yoo cann pay sometin dats worth $1.99, not just $1.99 inn muny.” Dr. Brain pointed to Felix’s pants.

Everyone else in the antivirus team came to listen, and cracked up, almost laughed their heads off! “Your pants?! They cost $1.99?” Ralph said. “That’s so cheap for low-quality pants!!!! AND YOU’RE PAYING YOUR PANTS FOR TOR SOFTWARE??? HAHAAHAHAHAHAHA!!!!”

“Snap out of it!” Felix snapped. “We can also loan money. $1.99 isn’t much, so we won’t go into debt.”

Ralph pulled out a small eraser from his pocket. “I used to use this for writing in 1994, but now we TYPE instead. So can we trade this old item for $1.99?” he suggested.

“Great! See that in the corner?” Felix pointed in the corner of the eraser. It looked like 199.

“No,” Ralph said. “That’s lgg. The eraser company also helps Intel make computer processors.”

The team decided that they would find a website that sold free things that are worth $1.99 in retail sales. They flew back to the cluster of dots. But they didn’t notice Dargalo was drifting right behind them.

The antivirus team chose freestuff.com as the website to go to. The dot was also quite large. Ralph and Felix picked up the free products, while Vanellope and Tuffyta checked the retail value. Qbert and Calhoun sorted the products. Lower than $1.99 would be thrown back on the shelf. Higher would be accepted. Sort of like an assembly line!

Finally Felix found a piece of gold worth $1,000,000! Ralph and the team grabbed it and carefully took it down the path of freestuff.com. They wanted to get a big change to pay the other $1.99 for entering.

Dargalo's Revenge at the TOR Center

The team tried to find tor.com. They split up and flew around to find a dot labeled TOR or something like that. After an hour they were so tired Dr. Brain had to take over.

“Yoo haff too doo da  $\frac{1}{2}$  matrix ann do da  $\frac{3}{4}$  subliminal startmatagy witth da montrious darmaly to quickly find tor.com,” Dr. Brain said. Despite that the rest of the team couldn't understand whatever a sub-whatever or darmaly is, it took only 5 seconds for Dr. Brain to find TOR!

The antivirus team walked down the wide path and saw a glass floor. They looked forward and saw purple walls and bright light. The place was also very well air-conditioned. There was an onion on the wall, followed by the letters “T-O-R”.

Ralph turned to Dr. Brain. “TOR's logo is an onion?” he asked.

“Yup,” Dr. Brain agreed.

Felix lead the group to the assistance desk of the TOR center. “How can I help you?” a robot woman asked.

“Uh... We would like to buy TOR,” Felix replied. He took the piece of gold and showed it to the robot. “Trade this for $1.99, plus a million dollars change.”

The robot examined the gold for a minute, and then said, “Sorry, we do not accept items more than $999,999. Also, we do not give change more than $100. Plus, you calculated wrong. The change would be $999,998.01.”

“No!” Ralph protested. Then the team and Dr. Brain had to rush back to freestuff.com to find a $1.99 piece of computer microchip processor.

“Look! It costs $1.99!” Felix pointed out on the microchip.

“No,” Ralph told him. He was very good at computers, so he knew what it was. “The same eraser company also makes microchips. That says lgg, not $1.99”

“But it’s retail value is $999, 998.98,” Vanellope said. She was right. A tag on it said the retail value. So the team walked back out to the 0-gravity cloud.

Everyone including Dr. Brain was very tired now. They walked outside the dot and rested outside for a few minutes.

“Do you think that was worth it?” Tuffyta asked.

Vanellope shook her head. “They should actually accept change more th-” She didn’t get to finish her sentence because she noticed something peculiar. She narrowed her eyes. Ralph noticed it too.

“That dag nab virus spy I punched on the arm last time is gone!” Ralph exclaimed. “He escaped to get revenge on TOR!”

Dargalo’s Password Quest

The antivirus team and Dr. Brain arrived at the TOR center. But right in front of them was Dargalo. He started talking as he walked in a circle around the team, but his voice sounded kind of like a mumble. “I,” Dargalo said. “Actually didn’t know the password. I’m not really an FBI agent, just like you figured it out 2 hours ago. I’m a virus dag nab bad guy. I just came here to see the password people left on the metal door. But you-you were dumb enough to hack in. All that’s left now is for you to tell me the password. Or else I won’t give back your old little spaceship.”

“No!” Felix replied angrily. He pounced right on top of Dargalo.

“First off, you’re a dag nab virus bad guy, not a virus dag nab bad guy,” Ralph said, proving a point. “Second, quit blocking the doorway of the TOR center. We’re trying to get TOR!”

Dargalo growled. So now I know what they're trying to do, he thought. I'll just get them on the fourth level of TOR and kill them to make more viruses. MUAHAHAHA!

Felix narrowed his eyes and turned to Qbert. "We wouldn't get TOR to go to the third level of the Deep Web for the SOLE PURPOSE of escaping that virus dag nab-whatever."

Dargalo jumped in front of Felix. "My name is Dargalo!" he said angrily. "So quit calling me a dag nab virus bad guy or whatever, you old anti-snigtus righter!"

Ralph piped up, "Fine, Dargalo." He turned to Felix. "You're right. So we should just go back to the second level or get out the entire thing."

Dr. Brain tapped Ralph's shoulder. He was hiding behind everyone else the whole time to not get seen. "Actually, you should stop calling them the first and second levels. I'm going to explain all the levels-" Dr. Brain didn't get to finish his sentence because Dargalo ran into him.

"WHY YOU LITTLE-OOF!" Dargalo pointed at Dr. Brain, but got hit by Ralph. It turns out he doesn't need fist guards for everything!

"Okay," Dr. Brain continued. Peculiar, he wasn't talking with the accent anymore. The accent was to fool Dargalo. "The first level is called the common web. The pages aren't secret or anything. They're just webstes not seen by normal people. The second level is the beige web, not much different. The third level, called the Deep Web, is more secret. You have to use TOR to go there. The fourth is the charter web, which includes the Hidden Wiki, a secret wiki. The fifth is marina's web, the sixth and seventh have no names. The 8th is the Archeon manif-"

Too bad, Dargalo took out a gadget that looked like an FBI spywear thing. Except it wasn't. He put it on his hand and held it out. Some computer sounds came from the gadget. Then a huge ray of blasted uranium came from the tip!

After the ray was shot, the antivirus team was gone. But Dr. Brain wasn't. Dargalo chuckled and took the scientist away!

Inside the Cloud: An Imported Portal

Suddenly, a lightning ray blasted out of a huge swirling thunder cloud. The antivirus team was churning around inside a huge mass of uranium. Then after around 10 minutes, it settled down.

"What is this place?" Felix wondered.

"This," Ralph said. "Is the cloud! The cloud stores files and other stuff. If you go to the cloud you can take things down to your computer. The cloud is very big. The files inside are games, documents, programs, shared."

"Oh," Felix said. "So you're just like Dr. Brain, huh? I bet you know so much about the cloud that your brain would be so small that."

"No, Felix," Ralph replied. "I read about the cloud online. And the cloud was 100 miles above Turbo City."

Turbo City was a place near the cloud on Earth where all viruses make evil plans to destroy computers. Once Ralph became bad and went to Turbo City. The cloud was 99.9999 miles above it.

"Lookwhatsthat!" Felix said really fast. He pointed to a spaceship icon. It looked just like the spaceship they traveled in from Earth!

"Okey, dokey! Let's run! Quick!" Ralph started running. All the other members of the antivirus team followed.

The Archeon Interface is WAY Too Secure!

After a few seconds they hit a hexagonal tiled floor. A loud, booming voice trembled across the ground. "THIS IS THE ARCHON MANIFEST. LEVEL 8 OF THE DEEP WEB. THIS IS WHERE YOU SHOULD NOT BE." A guard said that over and over again. It was kind of a “this is dangerous” welcome message.

The guard was a lot bigger than all the antivirus fighters, so Felix whispered, “That must have been a portal DISGUISED in a spaceship.”

Tafyta whispered back, “Then why didn’t you think before you and us ran?”

The guard was an Archeon. Maybe that was what that level of the Deep Web was named after. He looked around quickly, responding to the whispering. “WHO GOES THERE?!” he shouted. He saw small bodies on the ground.

Qbert saw red eyes and purple armor lower down in front of him. The Archeon asked, “Did you intentionally come here, to the Deep Web?” His mouth sort of was robot-ish. So was the guard’s voice.

“No,” Felix told the truth. “We were hit by a ray. Dargalo transported us to the cloud and we ended up here. Long story. Want me to explain the details?”

The Archeon only seemed to hear “Dargalo”. He repeated, “Dargalo.” He paused to think, then continued, “Dargalo. Yes, I know him. Him and I have a long history.”

“Really?” Felix asked curiously.

“It all started when Dargalo hit himself on the head 10 years ago. He fell onto a button that said, ‘Click here to enter the Deep Web! Only $1.99!’ He was mad that he had to pay $1.99, so he smashed through the metal door. The door was rebuilt later. Dargalo explored the Deep Web for 9 years until he knew all of the Internet. He decided to dress up as an FBI agent later, and stole a magnifying glass from the real FBI. And just 1 month ago, Dargalo was standing here, before me, telling me this story.”

Everyone had to agree it was cool, but Dargalo was bad. And now, Qbert turned around. “Dr. Brain is gone!” he exclaimed. This was the second time Dr. Brain was lost or captured. But they didn’t worry. They would deal with that later.

The guard waited for everyone to listen again, and told another missing piece, “Dargalo just wanted to know the password. He asked me what it was, but I wouldn’t tell him. I already knew what he did as an FBI coverup was bad. So he got mad and started capturing people to tell him the password. But no one knew.”

The Archeon let the antivirus team through the security gate. There were 2 security gates, so he gave the team members a security card to get through.

Before the second security gate, another Archeon appeared. Unfortunately, the only Archeon who was nice was the first guard. All the rest were very mean and didn’t let anyone through. Then what’s the point of having a gate anyway?

The second guard actually did let authorized people in. Authorized people had a security card. So Vanellope slid the card and Ralph led the team across the hall.

Dargalo Returns with Dr. Brain

Shortly after, Dargalo blasted himself with uranium and went to the cloud. Actually HE had put the spaceship icon trap to the Archeon Manifest. He ran into the shuttle and fell onto the hexagon floor.

Dargalo was wearing a backpack, zipped tight with Dr. Brain stuck inside, frantically trying to escape.

“Hey, Dargalo. Do you have your security card?” The Archeon guard assured.

“Yes,” Dargalo replied.

“Then why is your backpack shaking?”

“Oh, my backpack has a lot of wood and rocks inside,” Dargalo lied.

Suddenly, the zipper unzipped and an old scientist popped out. It was Dr. Brain!

“Hey!” Dargalo snapped. “Come back in here, Dr. Brain!”

Then Dr. Brain used his trick. “I’m not Dr. Brain. Dr. Brain has a weird accent like, ‘arr yoo docturr brainn?’”

“Oh,” Dargalo was surprised. “Then I should let you go then.” Using an accent to fool him was actually a really smart idea!

After letting Dr. Brain go, Dargalo kicked the Archeon’s leg. While the guard was limping, dargalo sneaked under the Archeon’s arm. He used his card to open both security gates. But on the second gate, he accidentally dropped his card!

Back at where the antivirus team was, Felix found a third security gate after the second. But he thought there would only be 2 security gates, so he threw the card on the ground the second try.

“Aww, dang it!” Felix grunted. He turned around to get it behind the second gate. Suddenly, a computerized voice said, “To access the gate again, you must use the same security card from last time. If you do not have a security card, please contact customer service.”

That didn’t make sense. If they were in between 2 security gates, how would anyone get to customer service? Felix wasn’t even sure customer service EXISTED.

Since Dargalo dropped his card too, he also heard the same computerized voice when he tried to get it back. But he had a short temper, so he started smashing the gate. But the gate was made of diamond and osmium, so too bad.

The Game Is NOT Over

Dargalo heard another computerized voice. “Please do not try to destroy a security gate. If you do, an FBI agent will come after you.” He knew the FBI agent was referring to himself, so he had nothing to worry about.

He rotated on his right foot, and saw a white rectangle behind the security gate. It was the card Felix dropped. Dargalo smiled and ran to the second door.

Felix and his gang were scrambling around the room to get out of the security door. Ralph didn’t care if he had fist guards or not, if his fists hurtled after a wham. So he leaned back. He threw his fists forward at full speed.

But just then, the gate opened. Dargalo had used Felix’s card to open it. So instead of Ralph hitting the door (which would hurt because diamond and osmium are very strong), his fists landed on Dargalo’s knees. Dargalo’s legs kicked forward and his torso flew backwards and smashed onto the security door.

Ralph laughed. But Dargalo was very annoyed. He stood up and was about to blast liquid uranium at everyone. But before he could, Ralph ran up and hit the button that said, “teleport to computer”.

The Battle Doesn’t End Here!

The antivirus team landed on the familiar computer desktop they were on before. They were out of the Deep Web and the Internet!

But then Dargalo appeared. He blasted himself with uranium too. “The battle doesn’t end here!” he snarled with a sneer. “Tell me that password, or I’ll teleport you to the dungeons!!! THEN I WILL KILL YOU!!!!!!” Then Dargalo was about to take out a sword, but a large green shadow appeared.

The alien kid's mom wanted to see the humans on the computer screen! She started clicking on Dargalo. The mouse pointer banged into his head! "YEEOOWWWW! OH THAT HURTS! WHY YOU STUPID..." he screamed. "OOFF OW! DANG! DARN! EARG!" The mom started dragging Dargalo across the screen.

Then, out of nowhere, Dr. Brain appeared! He ran towards Dargalo and threw him at the mouse pointer. Now wherever an alien moved the mouse pointer, Dargalo would be stuck.

Aliens who use computers aren't that good at knowing what's going on inside. So the mom thought Dargalo on the mouse pointer was a bug with the operating system. She clicked the mouse a bunch of times until Dargalo was shaken off.

Dargalo fell on the start menu button. Computers with Windows 8 have a full-screen start menu called Metro, unlike the normal start menu. The start menu pushed the antivirus team, Dr. Brain, and Dargalo into the corner of the screen. Dargalo's stomach was squeezed into the corner. "OUCH!" he screamed.

Ralph ran and took Dargalo's uranium teleport blaster. He pressed the "teleport to recycle bin" button. The recycle bin is where deleted files go. Dargalo dodged the beam, and he charged into Qbert's nose.

Qbert held his nose and walked into a program with a bed icon on it. He put a towel and tissue over his nose because it was bleeding. He stayed there for 15 minutes to recover.

"HOW DARE YOU HIT QBERT!? He's our friend!" Ralph shouted. He charged back at Dargalo. Suddenly, a spaceship icon appeared next to Internet Explorer. They could go to another planet!

Dargalo started chasing Ralph with a laser. He was just about to shoot Felix when everyone and Dr. Brain jumped into the spaceship.

Saving Dargalo, Not the Bad Guy Anymore

The spaceship flew out of the screen, past the alien mom, and into the middle of the computer room. Felix watched Dargalo yell as the alien kid came in. The kid started clicking on Dargalo hard. To a regular computer user, he was a funny animated icon. To Felix, he was a real person.

“Everyone! Stop the spaceship!” Felix commanded.

“Aww, come on! What now? We have to go! Out of this world now!” Ralph said.

“But we have to save Dargalo.”

“Dargalo? But he’s the bad guy!”

“Bad guy or not, he’s worth living! It doesn’t matter if he’s bad. Nobody’s born bad, at least.”

“All right!” Ralph pressed the button next to the steering wheel. The spaceship darted back into the computer. The alien kid clicked on the spaceship and everyone fell out. Ralph and Felix were completely alert.

Tafyta, Calhoun, Vanellope, and Qbert ran back outside the computer to occupy the spaceship. But they had to be fast. To the alien kid, the spaceship would look like a toy!

Ralph whammed the mouse pointer before it hit Dargalo. Felix grabbed Dargalo’s arm and pulled him into the spaceship. It was kind of hard to run pulling dargalo, because he had no idea of escaping.

Felix started the spaceship engine and fire busted out of the launcher. The spaceship rose into the air. But the alien kid saw. His hand was coming closer to the spaceship!

Ralph started running as fast as he could. He fell on the ground, and scrambled up quickly. The fingers of the alien kid’s hand were about to grab the spaceship! Even the kid's fingers were big compared to a mini spaceship 64 pixels wide and 48 pixels tall.

Ralph was running faster. He quickly jumped off the table. The spaceship had to dart downwards to catch Ralph. Felix flew the spaceship as fast as he could. Ralph landed on the hood and crawled into the door.

Right before the alien kid's fingers grasped together, the spaceship flew out the door.

"So," Ralph asked Dargalo. "Why'd you go around trying to kill everyone?"

"Well it was all my fault, actually. I wanted the password to the Deep Web because it was so interesting. And the only way to get it was to fake an FBI agent," Dargalo replied. "And I had to steal your spaceship to set up a dungeon just in case. Remember when I mentioned that during the fight?"

"Yeah," Felix chimed in. "Plus, I got the password."

"You did?" Dargalo asked.

Felix reached into his pocket. He handed Dargalo the security card. On the back of it, it clearly said, "Password: Ajbx6389JsonGHt21W3".

"Whoa..." Dargalo gasped when he saw the password. But he gave it back.

"Huh?" Felix was confused. "I thought that was what you wanted this whole time!"

"Before it was. But now it doesn't really matter. It's just a password."

---

To everyone who likes to surf the Internet and explore its deep regions. Read the rest of the series!